Building Bridges: Integrations for Streamlining Work

Rialto continues to enhance integrations with Ex Libris systems and ebook platforms to maximize efficiency for the library. In 2023 we introduced several new integrations, including:

Make the most of your budget with Ebook Central Integrations

In 2023 we introduced several new integrations with Ebook Central to ensure librarians can make informed purchasing decisions within Rialto, including:

- License Upgrade Requests: For titles already owned on Ebook Central, libraries can upgrade to a higher license right from Rialto, without needing to navigate over to LibCentral, for a more seamless upgrade experience.

- View Available Promotions: A new promotions page in Rialto displays active ebook promotions and expiry dates to help extend your budget further.

- Discount Display: Now you can view the real-time price, including discounts, for all Ebook Central offers throughout Rialto, allowing staff to see any promotional pricing prior to adding to cart.

- Access Model Display in Holdings Panel: The Rialto Holdings Panel now displays the purchase model type of any owned Ebook Central titles, including Owned, Subscribed, or DDA, saving librarians clicks to find this information.

- Remove from DDA: Rialto administrators can now initiate the removal of Ebook Central titles from their DDA pool within Rialto, without needing to contact support.

Reading List Information Visible in Holdings

When viewing marketplace results, Rialto users will now know when a title is on an active or future reading list to better inform purchasing. Similar to the holdings display, reading lists are searched in real time with market title information, and matching citations are displayed within a new Courses section in the holdings area. This enhancement supports our ongoing efforts to strengthen Rialto's integration with Leganto and Alma reading list management to help libraries easily purchase necessary course materials within a single workflow.

New to Rialto: Torrossa Digital Library from Casalini Libri

Libraries can now acquire over 65,000 ebooks* from Torrossa through Rialto, gaining access to a variety of Spanish and Italian content in subjects across the humanities and social sciences on a platform that is fully aligned with the functional and technical requirements of research and university libraries.

Torrossa is one of a growing roster of publisher direct platforms available through Rialto to help librarians consolidate searching, ordering, invoicing, and activation within a single system.

Rialto Partner Holdings Network

A new opt-in feature allows users to compare held materials across other Rialto institutions, including those outside of their network zone. Staff can also avoid duplicating purchases by identifying titles they can already borrow from nearby institutions that may not be part of their network zone.

EBA Enhancements

Rialto offers a uniquely innovative approach to evidence-based acquisition by providing efficient end-to-end program management in a single workflow. In 2023 we continued to enhance the EBA experience with new features, including:

- Ability to sort EBA pools by COUNTER usage to quickly identify highest-used titles
- Taylor & Franics EBA pools now updated weekly as new titles are published, providing a more accurate view of titles available
- Ability to Bulk Pin EBA Titles from a spreadsheet upload to assist end-of-program selections
