

DATA PROTECTION NOTICE FOR HEALTHCARE PROFESSIONALS

1. Introduction

This data protection notice describes how Mylan, N.V., Trident Place, Building 4, Mosquito Way, Hatfield, Hertfordshire, AL10 9 UL, United Kingdom (“Mylan,” “we,” “our,” or “us”) processes personal data of healthcare professionals (“you”) when we collect your personal data to provide you with scientific and product or other information, provide samples of medicinal products, organize and carry out events and webinars that you participate in, send you newsletters or other communications, process your product orders, or collect your personal data for such purposes.

2. Who is responsible for the processing of personal data?

The Mylan entity or entities hosting an event you are participating in (e.g., a webinar) and in the country where you practice or operate, where applicable, is the controller (or equivalent under applicable law), of your personal data. A list of Mylan entities and their contact details is available in the annex to this notice.

3. Which personal data do we process?

We process the following categories of your personal data: first and last name, title, specialty, business contact details including address and email address. In some cases we may also collect healthcare license numbers, registration and participation information for an event, webinar, or survey, product interest or product orders, and analytics about our interactions with you. If you order samples of medicinal products, we also process information on the type, extent and date on which the samples were provided. When you browse on our website, we and third parties such as Oracle Eloqua (see further information about Oracle in section 6 below) may use cookies and your IP address to create your visitor profile. We use this data to analyze which topics are of interest to you to improve our websites and information on our products and services that we provide to you.

We may also process your personal data through webinar recordings. Webinar recordings would capture any interaction between the presenter with the participants, including questions asked or comments made, as well as certain metadata (date, time) of the presentation. This may include presenters’ and participants’ video and audio.

4. For which purposes and on which legal basis do we process your personal data?

We process your personal data to announce visits from our sales department, to confirm appointments, and to provide you with scientific and other information (collectively “information purposes”) to provide you with information about pharmaceutical products, events and webinars of our group (collectively “marketing communications”) and to analyze your interactions with us, including with our newsletters and emails (collectively “communications analytics”).

Certain jurisdictions require that we have a lawful basis to justify our processing of your Personal Data. In certain jurisdictions your voluntary consent may be required for certain types of processing, such as marketing communications or communications analytics. In such jurisdictions and for such purposes, we will process your personal data based on the consent you provided.

If you have not given your consent and where applicable law requires a legal basis for processing your personal data, we process your personal data based on legitimate interests. Our legitimate interests are the processing for information purposes and data exchange within our group for the related internal administrative purposes. We may analyze personal data related to your webinar participation to measure the success of the webinar. We may also ask you to participate in surveys based on our legitimate interest to carry out a satisfaction survey among participants. Where applicable, we process this personal data based on our legitimate interests, which have been balanced against your interests and fundamental right and freedoms.

If you agree to participate in an event or webinar, we process your personal data to organize and carry out the event or webinar. If you order a sample of a medicinal products or a product, your personal data will be used to process your order. We process this personal data as necessary for the performance of a contract which you entered into.

If we provide you with samples of a medicinal product, we process your personal data to document it in accordance with legal requirements. We also process your personal data as necessary for the performance of a contract which you entered into with us or that you are contemplating entering into with us.

5. Are you obliged to provide your personal data to us?

You are not obliged to provide your personal data. Any consent you provide is voluntary. If you do not provide your personal data, this will not have any consequences for you although you may not receive information from us.

In relation to participation in an event or webinar, processing of product orders and provision of samples of a medicinal product, the processing of your personal data is necessary for the handling of the request you make to us. If you do not provide your personal data, we will not be able to fulfil your request.

6. Which cookies and analytics technologies do we use?

A “cookie” is a small text file that can be stored on your device when you interact with digital properties such as our website or our email. The information stored in the cookie can be read on subsequent visits to the digital property, allowing for the device to be recognized. “First-party cookies” are cookies set by the digital property that you are visiting; “third-party cookies” are cookies set by third parties when you visited the digital property.

“Persistent cookies” are cookies that are not deleted automatically when you close your browser or device. In contrast, “session cookies” are deleted when you close your browser or device. Persistent cookies enable the website to “remember” things about you as a returning visitor, such as your language preferences.

6.1 Strictly necessary cookies

Strictly necessary cookies enable core functionality on our digital properties such as security, network management, user authentication, and accessibility. Without these cookies, the properties and related services, such as browsing as a registered user, would not be available to you. While you may be able to configure your browser to reject these cookies, doing so would affect how our digital properties function. Such cookies expire at the end of the session or shortly afterwards.

6.2 Oracle Eloqua cookies and email interactions

If you give us your consent for use of analytics cookies, we can use Oracle Eloqua to analyze your use of our websites. Oracle Eloqua is provided by Oracle America, Inc., 500 Oracle Parkway, Redwood Shores, CA, 94065, USA.

When you browse on our website, Oracle Eloqua uses cookies and your IP address to create your visitor profile that may include:

- cookie ID
- your name and contact details (if you provided these data to us e.g. filling out a form on our website)
- location (based on your IP address)
- time zone
- browser version
- Internet service provider
- search engines you used and websites from which you were directed to our website
- visited pages on our website with date, time and duration of visit
- submitted forms on our website

We use these data to analyze which topics are of interest to you in order to improve our websites and information on our products and services that we provide to you.

Oracle Eloqua cookies remain in the browser until you delete them or expire after 13 months. You can withdraw your consent for use of Oracle Eloqua cookies at any time adjusting your settings at <https://www.oracle.com/marketingcloud/opt-status.html>

If you give us your consent for communications analytics, we may also use pixel tags in our emails to track if you received an email, opened it or clicked on any links in it. Pixel tags are invisibly embedded in the email and measure the success of our marketing campaigns. These data can be combined with your visitor profile created using Oracle Eloqua cookies. You can withdraw your consent at any time by clicking the unsubscribe link in our email.

6.3 Veeva email interactions

We use a customer relationship management system (CRM) of Veeva Systems Inc., 4280 Hacienda Drive, Pleasanton, CA 94588 USA. If you give us your consent for measuring email interactions, we may also use portable network graphics (PNG) files in our emails sent from Veeva to track if you received an email, opened it, clicked on any links, viewed or downloaded any documents in it. PNG files are invisibly embedded in the email and measure the success of our marketing campaigns. You can withdraw your consent at any time by contacting your Sales contact person or clicking the unsubscribe link in our email.

You can find further information on cookies and other analytics technologies in the data protection notice of our websites.

7. Who has access to your personal data?

Your personal data will only be made available to a limited number of recipients, including our employees and departments in the companies of our group, who need it according to their area of responsibility or for legal requirements.

We also use third-party service providers (e.g., hosting, IT support providers, and communications analytics), such as ON24, who may also have access to your personal data to provide their services.

Within the scope of our legal obligations, we may transfer your personal data to the competent regulatory, supervisory or law enforcement authorities. If data processing is necessary for establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims, we may also transfer your personal data to our lawyers and insurers.

8. Will your personal data be transferred to third countries?

We may transfer your personal data to other companies in our group or third-party service providers located outside of your home country. This may include transfers to countries that do not have the same level of protection for personal data as your home country. In such cases, we will ensure that these transfers are carried out in accordance with applicable data protection laws. Data transfers to other companies in our group or third-party service providers are protected by appropriate contractual safeguards such as EU standard contractual clauses where required by applicable law. To obtain a copy of the relevant documents, you can contact our data protection officer, see section 12.

9. How long do we store your personal data?

Your personal data will be stored in the form that allows your identification as long as necessary for the purposes for which they are processed.

If you have given us your consent for processing of your personal data (see section 4), we will store your personal data until you withdraw your consent. In any case, we will not use your personal data for longer than 17 months after we contacted you last time.

If you participate in an event, webinar, or survey, we will delete your personal data within one year after the end of the event, webinar, or survey unless longer storage is necessary according to statutory retention requirements or we separately maintain your information for other purposes such as for marketing communications. The data which are processed for performance of a contract with you, including any product orders are stored during the business relationship and then archived for the duration of the applicable statutory retention periods. The retention periods according to tax law and commercial law are usually up to 10 years. The evidence relating to provision of samples of medicinal products is stored for a period of usually up to 10 years.

We can store your personal data longer if and insofar as your personal data is necessary for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims.

10. Which rights do you have under data protection law?

The laws applicable in some jurisdictions may provide you with certain rights to control use of your personal data. For example, the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR), the United Kingdom, and certain other countries' laws provide individuals with various rights relating to their personal data. Where local law provides such rights, you may exercise the rights described in this section.

If our processing of your data is based on your consent, you may have the right to withdraw your consent at any time, without the withdrawal affecting the lawfulness of processing based on your consent before it. You can contact us for this purpose, see section 12.

You may have the right to obtain from us confirmation as to whether or not your personal data are being processed, and, where that is the case, you have the right of access to your personal data.

You may have the right to obtain from us without undue delay the rectification (correction) of inaccurate personal data concerning you and, where appropriate, to have incomplete personal data completed.

You may have the right to obtain from us the erasure of your personal data without undue delay (right to erasure).

You may have the right to obtain from us restriction of processing. For example, this right may apply if the accuracy of your personal data is contested by you, for a period enabling us to verify the accuracy of your personal data.

You may have the right according to receive your personal data, which you provided to us, in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format (data portability). You may also have the right to transmit those data to another controller without hindrance from us.

You may also have the right to object, on grounds relating to your particular situation, at any time to processing of your personal data, if such processing is for marketing is based on our legitimate interests or the processing is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in us. We will no longer process your personal data unless we demonstrate compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which override your interests, rights and freedoms or for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims. Where your personal data are processed for direct marketing purposes, you may have the right to object at any time to processing of your personal data for such marketing, irrespective of the legal basis, which includes profiling to the extent that it is related to such direct marketing.

Without prejudice to any other administrative or judicial remedy, you have the right to lodge a complaint with a regulator, that is a supervisory authority or data protection authority, if you consider that the processing of your personal data infringes an applicable data protection right. You can exercise this right at the supervisory authority in the country of your residence, place of work or place of the alleged infringement.

These rights are not available to everyone, and they do not necessarily apply in all contexts.

11. From which source do your personal data originate?

Where we have not collected your personal data directly from you, we have received them from a third party information broker or through a directory or practice website.

12. How can you contact us or our Data Protection Officer?

To exercise your rights or for any request related to the processing of your personal data you should contact our data protection officer:

- E-mail at dataprivacy@mylan.com; or
- Mail at Chief Privacy Officer, 1000 Mylan Boulevard, Canonsburg, Pa. 15317, United States, or
- Phone: 1800-800105 or <https://www.tnwgrc.com/mylan/newdialing2.htm>
